HONORARY DEGREE CITATIONS

NEW YORK CITY CAMPUS

Arthur Levitt, Jr.

DOCTOR OF LAWS

Arthur Levitt Jr. is a man who believes that it is far more enriching to have several careers in life than merely one. He has done just this. Before starting his illustrious career on Wall Street, he was a journalist, an advertising and promotion executive, and a cattle rancher.

The son of the late Arthur Levitt, New York State Controller, he was born in Brooklyn, New York, attended Poly Prep Country Day School and now serves as chairman of its board. After graduating Phi Beta Kappa from Williams College, he became a reporter for The Berkshire Eagle which he left to join Time, Inc. as an assistant promotion director. In 1959 he moved west to Kansas City and Oppenheimer Industries, a company in the ranchland and cattle-raising business, where he rose to the position of vice president in charge of its eastern operations.

Early in the sixties, he returned eastward to the canyons of Wall Street and joined what was then a small research-oriented institutional brokerage firm. He became its president and under his leadership, Shearson Hayden Stone, Inc. grew into one of the largest firms in the brokerage and investment banking business.

Three years ago, he was asked to assume the leadership of the American Stock Exchange. Since then, as a result of his stimulating leadership and dedication, the Exchange has prospered and grown. He has earned a reputation as the champion of the individual investor and the small businessman and has travelled thousands of miles across the country each year to address all types of business and community groups in his successful efforts to bring Main Street back to Wall Street.

An avid conservationist and member of The Sierra Club, his vacations include hiking, camping, riding the rapids or scaling mountain peaks. Long interested in the world of art, he is a member of the New York State Council on the Arts. Despite his commitment to his work and his varied outside interests he cherishes hours at home with his wife, Marilyn and their two children.

In admiration of the many and varied accomplishments of this man for all seasons, Pace University is happy and proud to confer upon Arthur Levitt, Jr. the degree Doctor of Laws, honoris causa, with all the rights and privileges pertaining thereunto.

HONORARY DEGREE CITATIONS

NEW YORK CITY CAMPUS

Harry B. Helmsley

DOCTOR OF COMMERCIAL SCIENCE

To witness the accomplishments of Harry B. Helmsley, one need only look at the familiar skyline of New York City.

As president and chief executive of Helmsley-Spear, Inc. he is one of the nation's largest and most diverse real-estate entrepreneurs. He has built or managed hundreds of properties in this city, including office buildings, apartment houses, and hotels. Among them are such landmarks as the Empire State Building, One Penn Plaza, Parkchester, Fresh Meadows, the Park Lane, the Carlton House and the St. Moritz.

In addition, he is responsible for numerous other properties across the nation in such cities as Detroit, Chicago, Washington, D. C., Houston, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

In a successful career which has spanned over half a century he has learned to achieve his business goals in many ways, whether converting an apartment into a condominium or funding a use for an empty building or in building the newest hotel in New York.

Born in New York City, he came from a modest Quaker family and graduated from Evander Childs High School in the Bronx. He entered the real estate business as a sixteen year old office boy and began his climb to the pinnacle of his field, where he now has the good fortune to be able to share both his work and his home life with his vivacious wife, Leona.

His zest for the work that he loves and the breadth of the holdings that he manages have impressed his colleagues and resulted in the naming of 230 Park Avenue in New York City as the Helmsley Building.

Pace University views the career and the accomplishments of Harry Helmsley with awe and admiration, and in conferring upon him the degree of Doctor of Commercial Science, honoris causa, honors both the University and the occasion at which it is bestowed.

HONORARY DEGREE CITATIONS

NEW YORK CITY CAMPUS

Felice N. Schwartz

DOCTOR OF HUMANE LETTERS

Felice N. Schwartz, whom we honor today, is truly a modern American pioneer. She has spent many years using her talents in extending the frontiers of human rights to seek and obtain equal opportunities for women.

In the "Who's Who of American Women", she is listed modestly as a sociologist. In reality, the women in American industry owe her a tremendous debt.

Since its founding almost two decades ago, she has been president of Catalyst and provided expert guidance for this highly-acclaimed nonprofit counseling organization for women. In her position of leadership, she has played an important role in obtaining hard-won rights of equal opportunity and treatment for women at work, on the assembly line or in the corporate suite.

Under her direction, one of Catalyst's particularly significant achievements has been to encourage women in their middle years to prepare themselves for reentry into the corporate world and to contribute their talents to the achievement of organizational goals.

A graduate of Smith College with a Bachelors of Arts degree, she has always valued her education and sought to provide meaningful educational opportunities for other women through programs at Catalyst.

A native New Yorker who still lives in this city, she, as a wife and mother of three children, has demonstrated that a woman may enjoy the rewards of both a satisfying career and a loving family.

For her impressive achievements in equal rights, and for her perseverance in pursuing the goal of equity in human relationships, Pace University takes deep pride in conferring upon Felice N. Schwartz the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa, with all the rights and privileges pertaining thereunto.

HONORARY DEGREE CITATIONS

PLEASANTVILLE/BRIARCLIFF CAMPUS

Stansfield Turner

DOCTOR OF CIVIL LAW

In honoring Stansfield Turner today we are recognizing a Rhodes Scholar who served with bravery and distinction in the United States Navy, advanced to the rank of Admiral, and for the past three years has held the challenging position of Director of the Central Intelligence Agency of the United States.

A United States Senator has described him as "an uncommon admiral, a philosopher and a thinker". He is all this and more. His interests range from philosophy, theater, opera and economics to international politics and military affairs.

Born in Highland Park near Chicago, he was a student of the world about him even in his high school days. He attended Amherst College and the U.S. Naval Academy where he graduated near the top of his class and still found time to earn a berth on the football team. Following graduation, he was named a Rhodes Scholar and studied philosophy, politics and economics and received a Masters degree in the arts from Oxford.

An impressive naval record during the Korean and Vietnam wars resulted in his promotion to the rank of Admiral and a Bronze Star for his gallantry in combat.

Subsequently, he was named President of the Naval War College at Newport, Rhode Island where he won national acclaim for his imaginative reforms of the curriculum. With courage and creativity, he instituted new programs of study, invited ideologically diverse civilian experts to lecture at the College, and encouraged his officer-students to study everything from Thucydides to the Cuban missile crisis.

His appointment as Commander-in-Chief of NATO forces in Southern Europe gave him further opportunity to demonstrate his extraordinary abilities as a military officer with a highly developed social conscience.

In admiration for Admiral Turner's intellectual breadth, his outstanding accomplishments and his unique skills in leadership, President Carter selected him for one of the top national security posts in the Administration, the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Since assuming his current responsibilities, Admiral Turner has continued to demonstrate his capacity to innovate as well as an energetic approach to his responsibilities. In doing so, he has inspired respect and commitment from his colleagues.

In recognition of the leadership, knowledge, courage, and creativity which he has demonstrated in his distinguished career of service for his country, Pace University salutes Stansfield Turner, and gratefully confers upon him the degree of Doctor of Civil Law, honoris causa, with all the rights and privileges pertaining thereunto.

HONORARY DEGREE CITATIONS

SCHOOL OF LAW

Lawrence H. Cooke

Today the School of Law at Pace University honors Lawrence H. Cooke, the twentieth Chief Judge of the New York State Court of Appeals and the first to be appointed, rather than elected, to that office. His many professional achievements and his inspiring commitment to justice and judicial reform command our respect and praise.

After graduation from Albany Law School with an LL.B. degree and being admitted to the New York Bar, he began an impressive career in the law which has extended over four decades. In addition to a private practice, he has served as County Judge, Surrogate and Children's Court Judge, State Supreme Court Justice, Appellate Court Judge, and Appeals Court Judge. In 1979 he was appointed to the prestigious post of Chief Justice of the Court of Appeals.

The care and thoughtfulness of his opinions have drawn attention to public issues of grave concern, particularly his decision which ruled unconstitutional sections of the New York statute on the death penalty, and his dissent on the constitutionality of a statute authorizing a trial judge to bar the press and public from pretrial suppression hearings in felony cases.

Not satisfied, however, with the current judicial system in New York, he favors major reforms, especially the need for a single trial level court, a unification of court rules, and the establishment of an additional judicial department.

His philosophy about the field of law can perhaps best be expressed in his own words describing his present office: "No more sacred duty can be entrusted to any person than that of leading august members of this court in their awesome responsibility of rendering justice unto our fellow citizens."

Pace University recognizes that the weight of that responsibility now rests on the shoulders of a jurist whose career mirrors his commitment to the law and the people of New York, and hence it is with unanimous voice that we confer upon you, Lawrence H. Cooke, the degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa, with all the rights and privileges pertaining thereunto.

PACE ALMA MATER

Alma Mater, hearts and voices sing to thee our everlasting praise;
Each and every heart rejoices at the thought of happy days.
Pace, Oh Pace, we'll ne'er forget you, nor the friends we hold so dear;
Memories will linger ever and will brighten coming years.
Alma Mater, stand forever, love is strong as we go marching by;
So to thee, we raise our voices with your standard held on high.
Pace, Oh Pace, we'll ever follow where thy beacons show the way;
True to thee we'll be forever as we labor day by day.

—IVAN FOX '54

THE CREED OF AN ALUMNUS

WE BELIEVE that the relationship of the alumnus with his alma mater begins with the first day of college and continues everlastingly.

WE BELIEVE that this union of the college and its alumni must be founded on mutual respect, service, and support, each one to the other.

WE BELIEVE that success of the individual is an accomplishment of the goals of the college and we, therefore, dedicate ourselves not only to the advancement of our personal goals but also those of our college, and of our fellow alumni individually and collectively.
